

"Birch Trees in Winter"
by Aniece Rucker

The U.S. Department of Education's Student Art Exhibit Program, now in its 11th year under the direction of the Office of Communications and Outreach and the Office of Innovation and Improvement, features visual and performing arts created by students in U.S. and international schools. The program provides students and teachers an opportunity to display creative work from the classroom in a highly public place that honors their work as an effective path to learning and knowledge for all. The works also provide Department employees and visitors with both a beautiful environment and the means to be in touch with the Department's principal customers—students.

The program features two exhibits at all times throughout the year: The winners of the Scholastic Art and Writing Awards are exhibited for a year beginning every August, and another exhibit, rotated every two to three months, accommodates the many educators who want to exhibit their students' work. Exhibits are currently booked through 2018. To schedule a visit to the exhibits contact Jacquelyn Zimmermann at 202-401-0762 or at jacquelyn.zimmermann@ed.gov.

Music historians say that the song "Tom Dooley" is one of the most recognizable songs in the world—that it single-handedly started the folk music era of the 1960s. The story of the North Carolina mountain man, who was convicted and hanged in 1868 in Statesville for the murder of his girlfriend Laura Foster, has been passed down for generations, and transcends all geographic borders and languages. Students will be performing scenes from the outdoor drama, "Tom Dooley: A Wilkes County Legend," written by Karen Reynolds. The story is not a pretty one, but it's part of our town's history, and we believe it's an important one to tell.
